The applicant's claims

The applicant has applied for the grant of a Visitor visa (subclass 600) to visit Australia for a temporary stay.

Information and evidence considered

I am a delegated decision maker under section 65 of the Migration Act 1958. In reaching my decision, I have considered the following:

- relevant legislation contained in the Migration Act and Migration Regulations 1994
- information contained in the Department's Procedural Instructions
- documents and information provided by the applicant(s)
- relevant information held on Departmental files.

Findings

On the basis of all the information available to me, including the documents and information the applicant provided, I find that the criteria for the grant of a Visitor (Tourist) visa in the Tourist stream are not satisfied.

Reasons

I have assessed the application and the reasons for my decision are detailed below.

An application for a Visitor (Tourist) visa in the Tourist stream has been made by the applicant.

A visa cannot be granted unless the relevant criteria specified in the Migration Act and the Migration Regulations are satisfied.

In this case, I am not satisfied that clause 600.211 in Schedule 2 of the Migration Regulations is satisfied. This clause provides that:

600.211

The applicant genuinely intends to stay temporarily in Australia for the purpose for which the visa is granted, having regard to:

- (a) whether the applicant has complied substantially with the conditions to which the last substantive visa, or any subsequent bridging visa, held by the applicant was subject; and
- (b) whether the applicant intends to comply with the conditions to which the Subclass 600 visa would be subject; and
- (c) any other relevant matter.

In assessing whether or not the applicant genuinely intends to stay temporarily in Australia, I have taken into account information provided in the application, the applicant's immigration history and compliance with previous visas. I have also taken into consideration any supporting documents as well as the applicant's personal circumstances, commitments, and incentive to return to their country of residence.

My decision is based on the following factors

The applicant claims that their purpose of travelling to Australia is visiting family.

I have assessed the application based on the documentation and evidence provided by the applicant. Before a visa can be issued, applicants must demonstrate strong financial, employment and/or personal ties which would demonstrate their incentive to abide by the conditions of that visa and depart Australia at the end of their authorised temporary stay.

I have considered the information and documents provided with the applicant's application, including their stated purpose of travel, personal and family circumstances, employment details and financial position. While I acknowledge that the applicant has presented evidence of ties to their home country, when taking into account the overall circumstances of the applicant's application I am not satisfied that these can be considered as significant in the context of the economic/financial conditions in their usual country of residence. As such, it cannot be considered a strong incentive to leave Australia at the end of their proposed stay.

On the balance of information before me, I am not satisfied that the applicant genuinely intends to stay temporarily in Australia in accordance with the conditions of the Visitor visa.

I have considered the applicant's economic circumstances and note that they have provided limited evidence of their financial standing. However, I acknowledge that the applicant has provided evidence of support from their inviter. While I have considered this evidence, I have attached less weight to this information as this is not in itself sufficient evidence of a genuine visit. The onus is on the applicant themselves to provide evidence of their circumstances in their usual country of residence that would demonstrate they meet the criteria. The applicant has also not demonstrated that they have sufficiently strong commitments in their usual country of residence that would be an incentive for them to leave Australia at the end of their proposed stay.

After considering the information provided, I am not satisfied that the applicant genuinely intends to stay temporarily in Australia for the purposes set out above.

Therefore, I am not satisfied that the applicant meets the relevant criteria in clause 600.211 in Schedule 2 of the Migration Regulations.

Decision

As clause 600.211 is not satisfied, I find the criteria for the grant of a Visitor (Tourist) visa in the Tourist stream are not satisfied. Therefore, I refuse the application by the applicant for a Visitor (Tourist) visa in the Tourist stream.

Yours sincerely
